

2019 NSEE Diversity & Inclusion
Scholarship Winner

Christy Quiogue
San Diego State University

Christy Quiogue is the Campus Internship Coordinator at San Diego State University (SDSU), where she works with the campus community in advocating for quality internship experiences through educating faculty, staff and employers on university policies while also advising students in securing internships. She views experiential learning as a valuable approach to preparing students in career readiness as evidenced by her previous roles in higher education. Serving as former Coordinator of Student Involvement at California State University San Marcos, Christy empowered students to translate student government and community services experiences into professional development; as the previous Experiential Services Advisor at University of California San Diego, she partnered with employers in offering student externships across California during spring break and as a Graduate Assistant in SDSU Alumni Engagement, she initiated an alumni mentoring program for first generation college students.

Christy's passion extends into diversity, equity and inclusion work as the former Director of the Intercultural Relations Center within SDSU Division of Student Affairs and first Career Development and Diversity Engagement Counselor in SDSU Career Services. Through these positions, she established the inaugural Diversity Career Conference at SDSU, bringing students, alumni and employers from diverse backgrounds to engage in critical discussions and presentations on the intersection of identity, community and career development. She is very proud to have merged her passion points into a program that serves students in a unique and meaningful way.

Christy is honored to receive the Diversity & Inclusion Scholarship and looks forward to being immediately involved in NSEE!
